A MEETING OF BAPTISTS

THE CENTRAL ASSOCIATION AT THE SOUTH-STREET CHURCH.

Action of a Franklin Church Causes a Commotion-Papers Read and

The annual meeting of the Central Bap-South-street Baptist Church, of which the to be forcibly dragged from the son's of the State Health Board. They are then ciation embraces the city churches and those of Franklin, Lebanon, Greenwood and Southport, all of which were represented. The delegates were entertained by the members of the South-street Church.

The Rev. A. D. Berry acted as chairman and the Rev. O. A. Cook as clerk. The annual sermon was by the Rev. Wallace St. John. The Emanuel Baptist Church and the Brightwood church were admitted to membership. Both churches occupy important positions in the fields in which they are located. The report of the secretary showed the membership of the churches in the association to be 4,300, of whom 414 were accessions during the year. The letters and addresses read were such as to show strict adherence to the old articles of faith and a firm stand against the new doctrines of liberality. There was, however, one exception and it created quite a sensation. The church at Franklin, the home of the Baptist College, reported that the church had admitted members on six months' probation. In the comments made this was called a "fall from grace." The matter was considered of much importance and promises to be a subject for public discussion

Among the papers read were the followand Miss Kate Williams; "Indianapolis as a Mission Field," by the Rev. J. R. Henry and Dr. W. H. Williams; "Work of Evangelists," by the Rev. E. M. Ryan and the Rev. Noah Harper; "Home and Foreign Missions," by the Rev. S. C. Fulmer, the Rev. A. D. Fisher, Mrs. W. C. Thomp-dividing son, Miss Mary McLean, Miss Della Dearborn, Mrs. M. H. Smallwood and Miss Par-Papers on other topics were read by D. Wallace, of Franklin, and the Rev. F. A.

The session closed with an evening sermon by the Rev. W. C. Taylor, pastor of College-avenue Baptist Church.

The first occurred about 6 o'clock. At that time Jack Morrison, of No. 1219 Nordyke avenue, and William Patterson became involved in a fight in which Morrison was stabbed between the seventh and eighth ribs and cut in a number of places. He had a cut across the cheek, extending over the ear, another on the neck, cuts on the left arm and on the body under the arm. Patterson was cut on the arm. Both men are sawmakers. > dividing Indiana into two districts is impracticable. The amount of business which falls upon a United States judge in the Indiana district is heavy, he says, but it cannot be lightened by cutting the district into two parts. "Two-thirds of the business coming before the court, not including criminal cases," said he, "is from that portion of the State north of the national road. If the State was divided through the center, the judge in the southern district would have a sinecure and the judge in the northern district would have as much to do as there is now in the whole district. Neither can the State be divided by drawing a line from north to south, as it would be too inconvenient living in the extreme north and south of the State to get to the court. Most of Indiana's population is in the northern half of the State, and in this respect differs from Ohio, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, where there are two judicial districts. When the time comes to make a change in Indiana, instead of favoring two districts, I would favor the appointment of another second judge for the whole district, and then let the two judges take turns

RECORD OF STATISTICS

HEALTH BOARD SECRETARY EX-PLAINS HOW IT IS KEPT.

Errors in the Bulletin Prepared by the United States Statistical Department.

The vital statistics bulletin prepared by the United States Statistical Department has been issued and contains many interesting tables. So far as Indiana is concerned there are many very gross errors pointed out by the secretary of the State Board of Health. He says: "Indiana has the most perfect law and method for collecting mortality statistics of all the States. Under our law it is almost impossible for a dead human body to be buried without the fact being immediately registered, and by the fifth of each month for the month preceeding, the original certificate of death of each decedent for that month is on file These certificates are immediately tabua short time there was the greatest ex- lated and classified and by the twentieth citement. She was nearly crazed, and had of the month are published in the bulletin the engine house, heard the shot and | The United States mortality statistics are secured by the census enumerators, who ask of the householder concerning deaths in the household for the year. As families are continually shifting, and as not infrequently children and servants are called upon for answers, it is plain that great accuracy is not secured. Our State statistics are secured at the time of death for the law commands that dead bodies shall not be burried without a permit and that no permit shall be issued except by health oficers, and they shall not issue a permit unless they have in hand a certificate and record of death properly and fully filled out in ink. In the event of a burial without a permit the persons conducting the burial shall be fined in any sum not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars, and in addition the coroner shall disinter the body. hold an inquest, and report findings within three days to the nearest health officer. "As the coroner gets a fee he is continually on the ulert and it is therefore very difficult for a body to be buried without being duly registered. Now when we come to compare the United States mortality figures collected in rather a loose way those of the State Board of Health which are rigidly collected at the time of death, there appear differences of considerable moment. For instance, the United States bulletin records but 33,586 total deaths in Indiana in 1900, while we have on file all ready for reference the original certificates of death of 35,458 decedents. the extent of 1.872 deaths. The diphtheria Judge Baker declares that the idea of deaths, for every one of which we have certificate on file, numbered 843, while the Inited States report gives 523. Again, the whoeping cough deaths collected by the State board numbered 322 and the government figure is 201. Pneumonia caused 3,061 deaths as the original certificates show, but the government report is 2,919. The only cause of death which the government has secured with approximate accuracy is smallpox, which is 19, the real number be-"It is greatly to be hoped that such miserable work has not been done by the Commenting upon the life and work of Dr. Baker, remarks were made by Drs. Dunning, Morrison, Hays, Wynn, Potter and Reyer, several of whom had been pupils of Dr. Baker, either at De Pauw University or at the Medical College of Indiana, or both. Aside from the feeling of all, it was the universal sentiment of the faculty that in the death of Dr. Baker a strong member of the teaching body and a valuable counselor in matters of medical education had passed away. No one had been more influential than he in keeping the college, during its recent years of rapid progress, in close touch with the advancing current in the general educational work.

He brought to our faculty conferences a brilliant mind well stored from experience as a university educator possessing a broad grasp of the relation of general to special education, and his suggestions concerning such matters were exceptionally valuable. His service of many years as professor of chemistry in this institution had been characterized by indefatigable industry and unselfish devotion to duty. Cheerful and uncomplaining always, his cilities for teaching, to the end that stu-

While it will remain as a constant reminder of his labor among us, more abidhis untiring zeal for science and his earn est desire to be of some account to his fellows. His standing as a scientist is known to the world, but a rarer privilege has fallen to those of us who, from intimate association, have known his spotless character, his genial and optimistic nature, which will remain as a lasting benediction to our lives. To our vision his life seems cut short, and yet how few have wrought for good in the world as he has done. He is gone, but his example remains for our emulation and our encouragement. To his sorrowing wife and children our hearts go out in tender sympathy. To them we would say that he still lives as a moral and in tellectual force in the character and life of the hundreds who, as student or friend, have known him.'

Paying Campaign Assessments.

The city patrolmen belonging to both political parties are paying their campaign assessments. It is a pretty easy matter for the Republicans to respond, for unless their subscriptions are voluntary they do not pay a cent to the campaign fund, and, in any event, no patrolman is assessed more than $8. It is different with the Democrats, however, as it is said that each Democratic patrolman is required to pay $20 and each of the sergeants $30.
